DATÇA PENINSULA, A HEAVEN ON EARTH...

If God wants the man to have a long life, he leaves him on Datça Peninsula...

Strabon

For centuries it was believed that the Datça Peninsula was to keep the secrets of a healthy and long life. Now, surrounded by beautiful sites and antique ruins, it's considered one of the most precious coasts of Mediterranean.

Kastebos

The ruins of this antique city are on the hills of Orhaniye Village. It's known that in the ancient times, Bybassos used to be a healthy centre and in the temple of Hermithea, people were cured by hypnosis. According to the mythology, Molpadia and Parthenos, the daughters of Staphyus who was the king of Rhodes, were given the duty of protecting the holy wine that was newly invented. Unfortunately, when the two fell asleep, the pigs knocked over the wine barrels. The girls were so frightened by their father's reaction that they both committed suicide by jumping down from a rock. The God Apollo saved the girls and brought Molpadia to Pazarcık that is very close to Hisarönü. The people, who believed that Molpadia cured the ills by hypnotising them, gave her the name Hermithea. In the name of this healing Goddess, a temple was also built.

In the region, there are also Bybassios, another temple and the ruins of a theatre, are as well open for visit.

Kizkumu

The small lagoon, which gives the impression that people have weirdly walked on the surface of the sea, has a story too. It's being told that a girl who was escaping from the bandits, made her way through on the sea by scattering the sand she carried in her skirt.

The Waterfall

This is a very charming site situated close to Turgut Village. Under the shade of the monumental sycamore trees, you get the feeling of a tropical forest. It's a unique place where you surrender yourself to the voice of the water and the birds.

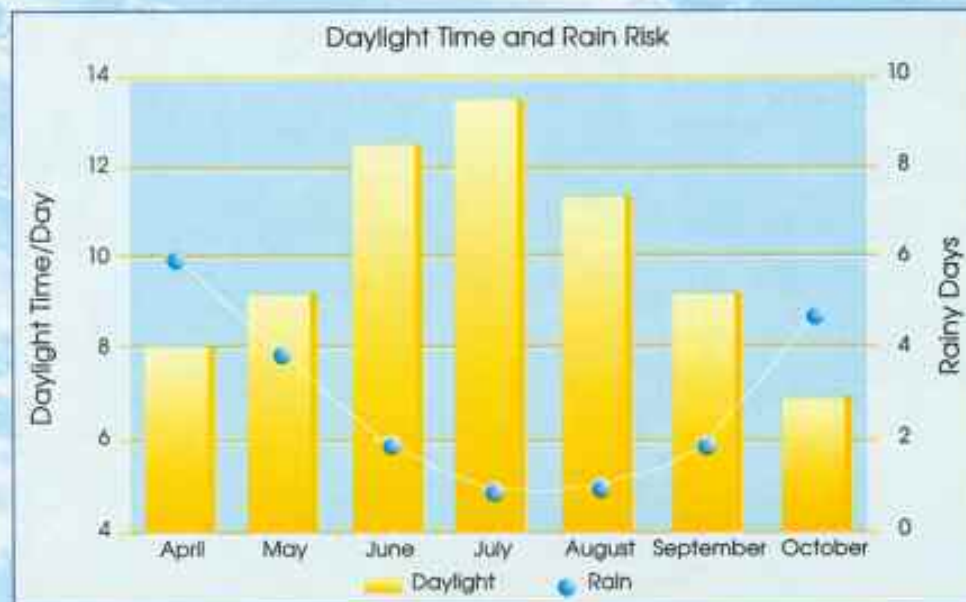

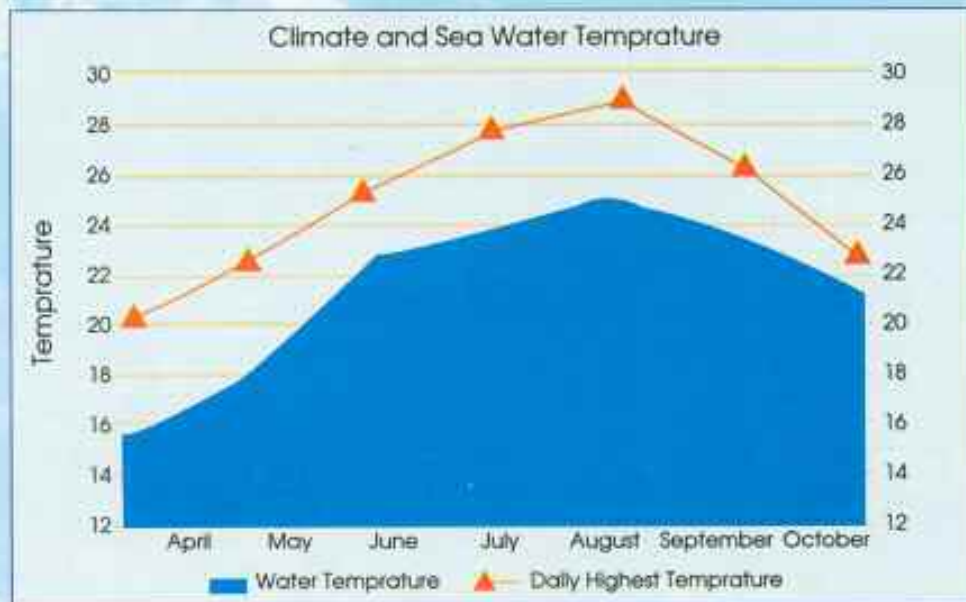

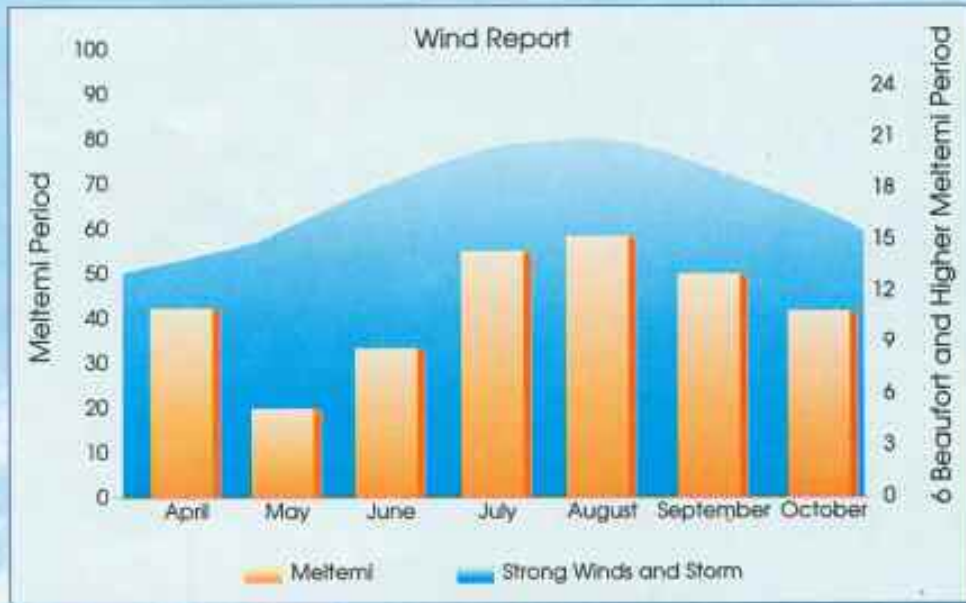

Villages in the neighborhood

Orhaniye, Selimiye, Söğüt, Turgut and Bayır are the hospitable villages where the people live on fishing, almonds and thyme.

Trekking tracks

In the vicinity of Martı Marina there are generous opportunities for the ones who love trekking.
